ABOUT THE CONFERENCE

The International Conference on Energy & Meteorology (ICEM) returns for its 8th edition in 2025 with the theme: Contributing to the Net Zero Emission Target. Building on the ambitious COP28 target to triple renewable energy capacity and double energy efficiency by 2030, ICEM 2025 will be a critical platform for advancing the innovations and collaborations necessary to achieve the Net Zero goal. Through insightful discussions and cutting-edge solutions, the conference will help shape the future of sustainable energy.

ICEM 2025 will also provide a premier international platform, offering excellent networking opportunities, alongside cutting-edge insights into the science, policy, planning, and operations of Energy & Meteorology. This unique event will bring together meteorologists, climatologists, researchers, and service providers.

ICEM 2025 promises to be an unparalleled opportunity to explore the latest advancements in energy and meteorology. The carefully curated programme will address key topics such as meteorological and energy data, forecasts across all time horizons, data post-processing, visualization, and delivery—including the latest breakthroughs in AI. These are essential tools and services to enable a timely and effective energy transition while ensuring system reliability and resilience.

The ICEM2025 team remains at your complete disposal for any further information or clarification.
